MUSIC

This Creative Arts report falls between major extracurricular events, with Grease and various Christmas-related events coming up, so we have the opportunity to focus on what is going on in our Y9 music lessons.

We work closely with the Drama department to deliver a Y9 curriculum that sees the whole year group divided into smaller classes. They spend half a term working on a topic in one of those subject, before moving on to the other department for the next half of term, and so on.

At the moment in music, we are delivering two different schemes of work. The first focuses on Blues music, exploring the terrible history behind this genre - and ultimately a lot of the popular music that we all listen to today. Pupils also learn keyboard and ukulele skills as part of creating their own Blues songs with various components.

We are also delivering a 'Rhythms of the World' scheme, which focuses on drumming from South America and Africa as part of a practical exploration of key techniques and terminology in this area, as well as creating group compositions incorporating all of this.

Along the way, we are passionate about helping pupils understand that studying Music in class is about so much more than playing an instrument and developing creativity! Music is a subject that engages the body, mind and soul and is proven to not just be an interesting subject in its own right, but a source of developmental support to learning other subjects.

In addition to preparations for 'Grease' and Christmas, our musicians have maintained normal routines, including some wonderful assemblies and chapel services.
